THE MESSAGE.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER, 11, 1877.

The President's message was read to Congress yesterday. It is rather a lengthy document, as from the number and importance of the subjects treated it necessarily must be: but it is a more sensible, broad and liberal production than the people have yet seen from a Republican executive.

In regard to his Southern policy he ministration have been subjected to severe and varied criticism. Any course whatever would have incurred this, but I trust these measures were right, and in my judgment such as were most in barmony with the constitution and with the genius of our peo ple, and best adapted under all the ircumstances to attain the end in view.

Upon the finances he thus expresses himself:

I cannot be mistaken, I think, in regarding as pre-eminent the policy and sures which are designed to secure the restoration of currency to that normal and healthful condition, in which, by the resumption of specie payment, our internal trade and foreign commerce may be brought into harmony with the system of exchange which is based upon precious metals as the intrinsic money of the world.

I must, however, adhere to my most carnest conviction, without wavering of purpose or unsteadiness in method. ing or reducing the inconveniencies inseparable from a transition from irredeemable to a redeemable paper currency would only tend to an increased and prolonged

DISTURBANCE IN VALUES, and unless relieved must end in serious disorder, dishonor and disaster in the financial affairs of the government, and of the people. The mischief which I apprehend and urgently deprecate is confined to no class of people indeed, but it seems to me most cer tainly to threaten the industrious masses, whether their occupations are of skilled or common labor. To them, tance that their labor should be comenanted in money, which is in itself fixed in unchangeable value by being arrevocably measured by the lab i necessary to its production. This equality of the money of the people is sought for, and can only be gained by the resumption of specie payments. The rich, the speculative, the opera ting and the money dealing classes, may not always feel the mischiefs of or may find casual profits in a variable currency, but the misfortunes of suca currency to those who are paid sal... ries or wages are inevitable and reme

The public debt of the United policy States to the amount of $729,000. 000, bears interest at the rate of 6 per cent., and the only way in which the country can be relieved from the payment of these high rates of interest is by advantageously refunding the in ness. Whether the debt is ultimately paid in gold or in silver coin, is of but little moment compared with a possible reduction of the interest one third by refunding it at such reduced rates. If the United States had the unquestionable right to pay its bonds in silver coin, the little benefit from that process would be greatly overbalanced by the injurious effect of such payment, if made or proposed against the honest convictions of the of the country, are justly payable inonly dollar that could be or was re shoulder. ceived by the government in exchange for bonds was the gold dollar. To require the public creditors to take in repayment any dellar of less commercial value, would be regarded by them as a repudiation of the full obligation assumed.
